Abstract

This article analyzes the topic of the father and mother being equally responsible for the upbringing of their minor children. Educating young people is a sacred duty of every parent to the Motherland. He should approach this duty responsibly. Parents who want to secure their future should spend their time and effort on raising their children who will be great people of tomorrow. The work spent on other areas may be lost, but the work spent on the development of the child will become an inexhaustible treasure. It is no exaggeration to say that the money and time spent on the development of a child is the basis for a prosperous life tomorrow.

Keywords: family, parents, education, duty, responsibility, obligation, right, minor children.

Education is the process of imparting knowledge, skills and abilities, the main means of preparing a person for life and work. In the process of education, information is obtained and education is carried out. Education and training are inextricably linked. If a person wants to be knowledgeable, he must first of all be educated. An educated person can become a perfect scholar. Today's and tomorrow's day of every country depends on the condition of the schools in that country and the quality of education.

We can imagine the future of our country depending on the knowledge of the growing young generation and what kind of people they will be in the future. That is why they say: "The future is in the hands of young people." Raising a child starts with the family. We call the family "small homeland". This Motherland will be the primary education school for the child. In a sense, parents are the first teachers of their children. Therefore, parents should have high moral qualities. The child of a parent who can be an example to a child with good qualities will be a well-rounded person with good character, high knowledge and benefit to the nation in the future.

The well-known pedagogue A.S.Makarenko noted that education up to the age of five is very important in the formation of a child's personality. He wrote about this: "...the main basis of education ends at the age of five, so what you did before the age of five is 90 percent of the educational process, and further education continues on the basis of re-education" [1]. It is this period of time that requires a lot of responsibility from parents. At this time, parents should pay more attention to their child and seriously engage in his upbringing. It is very important to be able to properly educate the child during this period.

Educating young people is a sacred duty of every parent to the Motherland. He should approach this duty responsibly. "Parents who want to secure their future should spend their time and efforts on raising their children who will be great people of tomorrow.

The work spent on other areas may be wasted, but the work spent on the development of the child will become an inexhaustible treasure" [2]. It is no exaggeration to say that the money and time spent on the development of the child will be the basis for a prosperous life tomorrow. If a parent does not pay attention to his child and his upbringing, it can cause problems in the future. By then, it may be too late to solve the problem. After all, if we run after a snake that has bitten us, we cause the snake's poison to spread throughout our body. To avoid this situation, it is necessary to prevent it, not to run after the snake. Therefore, he should not be indifferent to the child from his youth, but pay attention to his upbringing and learning. Every parent should teach first of all how to greet and respect elders. Because it is not for nothing that our wise people say: "The beginning of speech is words, the beginning of manners is greetings" - he did not say for nothing. From time immemorial, our forefathers attached great importance to the young generation growing up to be well-behaved, polite, knowledgeable, capable children. If a child grows up to be incompetent, not only the parents will suffer, but also the country, society and state. That is why family education has important political significance. A child with a strong imagination receives his first education in the family. "It is necessary to start education from the day of birth, to strengthen our body, to clarify our mind." It is not for nothing that there are many myths, legends, proverbs and tales about raising a child among our people.

Wise people say that a child should be educated from the mother's womb. When a child is well-educated, he can become a perfect scholar and a perfect person. Undoubtedly, parents, family, neighborhood, schools play an important role in the education of children. Nowadays, bringing up a child with good manners, knowledge and education is an urgent issue of the state. It is not for nothing that they say, "Seven neighborhood parents for the education of one child." If the child is of school age, the parents and the school and even the neighborhood are always on the right track when raising the child, that family, that neighborhood will flourish. But nowadays there are many people who do not pay attention to the education of children. If a parent wants his child to become a knowledgeable, perfect person, he will give his child proper education, stay aware of his studies, and always be in contact with the teacher.

Only then can you expect good results from your child. A parent who wants to see his child's development does not put all the responsibility on the teacher, but always works together with the teacher. Parents should teach their children to respect the teacher, that the teacher is the second mother and that the school is the second home. Only then will the child respect his teacher and remember everything he taught. This will help them apply what they have learned later in life.

Parents should meet with teachers. Because they learn more about their children. Therefore, every parent who understands the essence of child education and is not indifferent to their child's education strives to strengthen the cooperation between the family and the school.

"Parents should establish a close relationship with the school until the child finishes school, master the lessons of their child, be aware of their behavior, consult with the teacher on educational issues, what the child is doing after school must inform the teacher about.

Taking care of a child from birth, ensuring that he receives a healthy and proper upbringing and modern education is the future of our society, the foundation of our tomorrow. Why, children are like clear water. It is no secret that children accept the environment, the manners and behavior of their parents and teachers exactly as they see it, just as water takes the shape of the container in which it is placed. After all, the proverb "A bird does what it sees in its nest" is not said for nothing.

Therefore, it is necessary to take a very responsible approach to the upbringing of children and not to forget that personal example is a very important factor in this. In the words of the great Allama Abu Hamid Gazali, "Child education is one of the most important things. A child is a trust for parents. A child's heart is pure, delicate, simple and free of any pattern and image. Whatever pattern is placed on it, it will 'ra is formed, bends towards the bent side.

Allama also emphasizes that if a child learns to be good and grows up in good, he will find happiness in this world and the hereafter. If a child is neglected, he will grow up in evil, he will face misfortune. In this case, the burden of sin is placed on the parents. Some parents, after the birth of their child, get a divorce using a flimsy excuse. On the other hand, family breakdown has a very negative effect on the child and derails his upbringing, unfortunately, it is confirmed by many unpleasant events in life.

Our constitution 64 of our Constitution states that parents are obliged to feed and educate their children until they reach adulthood. However, it is extremely sad that some divorced parents do not participate in the education of their children at all and do not even voluntarily provide for their child's financial support.

As stated in the Holy Hadith, "A man is the authority of his family and is responsible for his subordinates. A woman is the authority in her husband's house and she is responsible for her subordinates."

Therefore, every parent must not forget that he is responsible and responsible for his children. After all, this child's future is the most important and necessary factor in his growing up as a perfect person. At the same time, this is a legal requirement, a moral duty and a mandatory debt according to the pillars of our holy religion.

Parents themselves should always be an example to their children in their daily life, in their interactions and in their relationship to society. They need to be trained.

Negligence of parents and entrusting their child's upbringing to others also causes negative situations.

Today, some parents with big dreams, that is, with the intention of better financial support for their child, to have a more luxurious wedding than others, to make their sarpa fluffy, give their child to their old parents, relative or There is also a saying that they go to another country to work and earn money, leaving their neighbors. But they don't always realize that they are wasting the time that should be given to the child and that it cannot be replaced by material benefits or spiritual and educational lessons. Unfortunately, when they finally understand, it will be too late.

In the upbringing of a child, whether it is a boy or a girl, at the time when he is entering adulthood, in the language of psychologists, in the "transitional period", any behavior and situations of the child, walking. It is necessary to seriously control the posture.

Especially at such a time, you can't trust someone else to raise a child. Let's say that some parents chased frivolous passions, went abroad in search of good income and even earned some money. However, we often witness that their thoughtful actions cost themselves first of all. After all, the education and upbringing of the child Arjumand, who was neglected and neglected during the past period, has gone off track.

Today, the majority of minors who have committed a crime and are being punished, more precisely, more than 70 percent, are children of parents who have divorced or left the family for a long time to work in another country, confirming these opinions is standing.

Relationships in the family are not set up correctly, parents are addicted to alcohol, there is a loss of mutual respect between the spouses and children in the family, in short, the heads of the family First of all, they find their reflection when they need education.

When it comes to the reasons why children fall into the path of crime, it is necessary to think seriously about various information that negatively affects the minds of our minors. It is self-evident that the information showing violence and obscene scenes distributed on the Internet has a strong negative impact on the minds of young people. Therefore, we need to be very careful of children from such attacks.

All the reasons that lead minors to the street of crime are directly and indirectly related to education. Schools and universities are not only places of education, but also places of education. It is necessary to increase the responsibility of parents in raising children, to pay attention to the issue of working with children from troubled and unhealthy families in a systematic way.

In order for the child to grow up, both the teacher and the parents and even the child himself, must make an effort. Only then will there be growth, there will be results. The role of parents in raising a child is incomparable. Parents should pay attention to their child's upbringing and education. In order for society to progress, education must be effective. For effective education, parents should be knowledgeable. In order for our children to be knowledgeable and educated, it is necessary to develop ourselves spiritually and not be indifferent to the education of children around us.
